UNION PARK, BALTIMORE, April 19.—The National League baseball championship season for 1894 was opened to-day with a big hurrah. The Monumental City realized the importance of the occasion, and arose to it gallantly. The weather was favorable, for though the sky was overcast, there was no fall of rain. There was but little wind, and the air was warm enough to permit the donning of overcoats and wraps.

The train containing the delegation of New York rooters left the Pennsylvania station, Jersey City, at 8 o'clock this morning. About seventy-five came down, and everybody on the train knew who they were and where they were bound. Each man was equipped with a lance of black and white, the colors of the New York Club. In the party were included:

E. B. Talcott, F. V. Ingraham, John B. Day, Joe Gordon, Jack Hartley, Nick Engel, Adam English, Fred Goodson, Charles Ward, Max Gumprecht, Tom Goodson, Fred Hoyer, Dr. Livingston, Dave Kerr, C. L. Hutton, Starbuck, George Winter, Thomas F. White, John Troy and a dozen newspaper men.

The trip to Baltimore without incident. President Von der Horst, of the Baltimore club, met the party at the station. It was evident, however, when this city was reached, that something unusual was going on. A crowd of a thousand people gathered about the entrance of the hotel, where the members of the New York Club, the Orioles' opponents of to-day, were waiting. The business streets all the way up to the hotel were lined with people.

As soon as the party registered, preparations were begun for the procession to the grounds. About twenty carriages were waiting, and the members of the New York Club, the Orioles' opponents, were waiting in the carriages. The procession started for the grounds at 1 o'clock. It was led by a brass band. Then came the newspaper men, followed by the two nines. The Orioles were in the lead, and the New York Club followed. The procession was a fine sight, and the people who lined the streets were much interested in it.

(By Associated Press.)

COBURG, April 19.—This, the wedding day of the royal pair, the Grand Duke Ernest Louis of Hesse and Princess Victoria of Coburg and Edinburgh, was dawned with the sky somewhat overcast. By 9 o'clock, however, the sky had cleared to a beautiful blue and the sun beamed gloriously upon the temporary headquarters of representatives of nearly all the imperial and royal families of Europe.

The morning hours were the occasion for much dashing here and there of mounted orderlies and considerable driving about on the part of the wedding guests. The First Dragon Regiment (land) played a delightful musical programme in front of the Edinburgh Palace. Crowds soon packed the Palace Square, and all important personages were loudly cheered so soon as recognized by the expectant multitudes. The Schloss Plaza and the terraces overlooking the park were so thronged by 10 A. M. that the police were compelled to drive people away in order to prevent dangerous crushes.

According to the "ceremonial" decided upon by Queen Victoria (all arrangements having been submitted to her at Florence), the marriage was fixed for noon precisely, in the private chapel of the Ducal Schloss, with full state, in the Lutheran style.

Following German precedents, there were no bridesmaids; but the bride was supported by her younger sisters. The private chapel of the Schloss was thoroughly decorated for the occasion, and as the wedding took place on Prima-rose Day primroses entered largely into the interior decorations. The flowers were sent from England for the occasion.

Queen Victoria was accompanied to the chapel by the Duke of Sax-Coburg-Gotha, the Duke of Edinburgh, father of the bride, and was escorted to an arm-chair in the front row next to Emperor William of Germany, by whose side was the Duchess of Sax-Coburg-Gotha, the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, only daughter of Czar Alexander II. and sister of the Czar.

There was some delay in the proceedings, and consequently it was 12:30 P.
M. before the ceremony commenced.

In the wedding procession, Emperor William escorted the Duchess of Coburg, and ex-Empress Frederick followed alone. The Prince of Wales and the Czarevitch came next, walking together.

The bridegroom entered with his supporters, his uncle, Prince Henry of Hesse, and his brother-in-law, Prince Henry of Prussia.

The bride came in last, supported by her father and brother and accompanied by her sisters.

The Prince of Wales sat beside ex-Empress Frederick of Germany (deceased daughter of Queen Victoria); then came the Czarevitch (Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia, eldest son of the Czar). These distinguished guests occupied front seats on the other side of the aisle, corresponding with those of Queen Victoria, Emperor William and the Duchess of Coburg.

The aides, court officials and Ministers in attendance remained standing throughout the ceremony.

Among the distinguished personages present were the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince and Princess Hohen-lohe, the Duke and Duchess of Prussia, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess Sergius of Russia and his wife, the Princess Elizabeth of Hesse Darmstadt; the Princess Alix of Hesse, the Crown Prince and Princess of Roumania, the Hereditary Prince and Princess of Sax-Meiningen, Prince and Princess Philip of Coburg, Prince George of Greece, Prince Albert of An-halt and Princess Henry and Louis of Battenberg.

Queen Victoria wore the broad blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter, and upon her head sparkled a magnificent crown of diamonds. Her Majesty remained seated throughout the ceremony, her age and infirmities preventing her from standing when the other guests arose.

The General Superintendent of the Lutheran Church, Pastor Mueller, officiated, and was assisted by the Court Chaplain of the Grand Duchy of Hesse and by five local clergymen. After the ceremony, the bride and groom were seated in a carriage, and the wedding party proceeded to the Schloss. The
